Flooded Fields

All available natural water to irrigate and supplement water-fowl and other wildlife are directly impacted by the availability of clean water on the ground and the control of water.

Excessive pumping of water and excessive wetland encroachment are needed to maintain quality habitat for nesting and raising waterfowl, shorebirds, and cranes.

Water is generally one of the most precious commodities available to humans and wildlife. Excessive pumping of water and excessive wetland encroachment are needed to maintain quality habitat for nesting and raising waterfowl, shorebirds, and cranes.
